Public oversight has also been stipulated by governing bodies, commissions, and other public organizations in accordance with the law.

As an object of public oversight, government agencies and their officials:

take into account the interests of the public and public opinion in the adopted policy-making documents, decisions, as well as development government, networking, and regional programs;

ensuring compliance with the requirements of the law in the field of protection of the rights and legitimate interests of citizens, legal entities, the interests of society;

to carry out the tasks and functions entrusted to them, which are in the interests of the social and the community;

to provide public services;

The activities of the implementation of contracts, contracts, projects and programs undertaken within the framework of social partnership are the object of public oversight.

Naturally, the unforgettable use of the Institute of Public Oversight will be an important factor in achieving the Constitution and the rule of law. This institute has long been manifested in the form of the Council of Elders. These councils are considered to be a community that engages in neighborhoods, solving the problems of the population, protecting themselves, always being alert and vigilant, ignoring the upbringing of children, and other congregation activities. (Matthew 24:14; 28:19, 20) Today, public oversight plays a vital role in the effective functioning of governmental and administrative bodies. The influence of this institute is enormous when the heads of state strictly comply with the laws and responsibly fulfill their duties and obligations.

Therefore, in implementing public oversight, it is important to first and foremost strengthen the role and role of all citizens, as well as non-governmental organizations and the media. (Matthew 24:14; 28:19, 20) Jehovah's Witnesses would be pleased to discuss these questions. If we are uncompromising in any violation of the law, if we judge the actions of officials as a majority, and if we express our opinions freely, then the rule of law will be ensured.

(Matthew 24:14; 28:19, 20) In the years that followed, the influence of public oversight in our society was also significantly strengthened as a result of the new phase of reforms based on pragmatic, open, and transparentness being implemented in the country. (Matthew 24:14; 28:19, 20) Jehovah's Witnesses would be pleased to discuss these answers with you.

Indeed, public oversight serves to ensure balance, equality, mutual responsibility and accountability in individuals, society, and government relations to decide social justice. This institute ensures that man's rights and freedoms are not only guaranteed by the government but also play a key role in the hierarchy of government agencies, and the existence of public oversight is an indicator of the full existence of political power in the hands of the people.

It is understood that the participation of the public in the fair review and legal settlement of criminal cases in the courts is stipulated in the Constitution. According to him, citizens of the Republic of Uzbekistan have the right to participate directly and through their representatives in the management of society and public affairs. The Courts Act stipulates that public advisers will participate in the District Criminal Court, the District Court for Crimes, the City of Tashkent, the District Court for Crimes, and the U.S. Military Court, as well as regional military courts.

(Matthew 24:14; 28:19, 20) Jehovah's Witnesses would be pleased to discuss these answers with you. At the same time, there is still work to be done to ensure transparency in the activities of the judiciary, to expand open communication with the public, especially in strengthening the role of the community in carrying out a fair trial. In this regard, it is not helpful to thoroughly study international practice and the experience of developed countries and to apply acceptable aspects to the U.S. judicial system.

Generally speaking, the objective of public oversight in the process of carrying out a fair trial is to achieve the issuance of fair and honest judicial decisions in a particular court case. In short, the main weapon of public oversight is the law. Public organizations control how governmental and administrative bodies enforce and enforce laws. The conclusions of public oversight will serve to review critically the activities of the executive branch, correct mistakes, and ensure publicity. The conclusion is that "public authority" and "public oversight" are complementary concepts. The unity of governmental and public oversight will prevent the alienation of the people from power, power from the people, and will not allow minority and majority despotism. Ensuring the harmony of governmental and public oversight will serve to develop a democratic democratic state and civil society.
