Annotation:

This article describes the specific features and solutions of social reforms in New Uzbekistan, the acceleration of reforms in our country, and the large-scale work being done to create New Uzbekistan.

Keywords: social reforms, philosophy of development, information and communication technologies, principles of justice.

Introduction

He described the social country as creating decent living conditions for everyone using the principles of social equality and justice, and that it is a model of a country that pursues effective policies to reduce social discernment and help those in need. The social state stipulates that the minimum amount of housing and living goods needed for those in need will be set, and that it requires wages, employment, creating safe working conditions, and reducing poverty for an individual and his family to live a decent life.

Literature Analysis and Methodology

You can distinguish four directions that somewhat vividly demonstrate the philosophy of development in New Uzbekistan. The different side of the reforms is their evident social orientation, their efforts to get closer to a person, his needs, his ability to move people to rapidly changing socio-economic environments as a result of reforms, and the creation of socio-economic environments and an effective social security system.

(Matthew 24:14; 28:19, 20) Today, it has become clear that the reforms that are being undertaken in our country and that Uzbekistan has embarked on a new path to development, that the socio-economic, economic, educational, and scientific environment itself is becoming much more complex and serene, and that continuous analysis, quick adjustments, and the development of governance and the creative discovery of new sources of growth are becoming more serious.

It is known that special attention is paid to the social welfare of the population. At the beginning of reforms in Uzbekistan, it was noted that its real purpose was to create living and living environments worthy of man. Since the beginning of the transition to bad relations, measures have been taken to protect the population in advance. To that end, the amount of permanently modified activities, penalties, various contributions, scholarships, and compensation payments were widely used.

As Uzbekistan gained independence, a wide range of opportunities were created for the activities of non-governmental organizations. The state guaranteed both the legal and economic basis for the activities of such organizations. This provided an opportunity to increase the number of nonprofit organizations and contribute to addressing existing issues in the way society lives.

Results:

For the first time in our country, an integrated, modern system of social support for its people is being implemented gradually and consistently. It is also based on radically new mechanisms for implementing "social communication" with the people. Given the broader reforms that have been undertaken in our country in recent times, we can see that some of them have been directed to social justice.

Thus, everyone who is qualified to work in a social state is employed. A sufficient wage will be set for him to live properly, safe working conditions will be created for the worker, unemployment protection, quality education, and the right to receive qualified medical care will be real. Children, women, the elderly, people with disabilities, migrants and their families are supported on all sides.

Given mankind's historical history and development, each time it has its own developmental factors, needs, requirements, and principles of life. Thus, he will witness high historical events that will define specific aspects of the development and formation of all of this, the dedication of special meaning to them, and the activities of government, society, and socio-political institutions.

It is the same truth to say that the action strategy is the main program for a new era of development, defining the scientific and theoretical, practical constructive foundations for the rapidly developing development of Uzbekistan using the demands of a rapidly developing time. This large-scale, unique document is becoming increasingly important for the introduction of innovative approaches and criteria in all sectors of our country, the development of entrepreneurship, entrepreneurship, a sense of responsibility and responsibility for the fate and future of our country, and the establishment of effective system-assisted activities in our country and abroad, Popular countries and political figures who rank high on the world political arena are widely recognized.

Discussion:

It is well-known that the needy, as well as the needy, have been provided with support and assistance from the government on the basis of a system of guarantees. (Matthew 24:14; 28:19, 20) Jehovah's Witnesses would be pleased to discuss these answers with you.

It has been recognized and highly esteemed that the idea of "for human value" in the new world, the placement of the life, freedom, dignity and dignity of everyone, the placement of other inviolating rights, glorification, as well as a peaceful and safe life for every citizen of the state, a qualified medical care, quality education, strong and addressable social protection and healthy ecological conditions, and the creation of a decent lifestyle.

(Matthew 24:14; 28:19, 20) Today, at all stages of government in the country and society, critical analysis, strict discipline, every law, decree, and decision, as well as conscious attitude toward the innovation that is being introduced, have come first and witness that the working conditions are being decided extensively.

Acting in each area using the specific and effective system and standards set out by the country, for example, taking the economy, ensures not only the quality of products but also the continuity of professional formation in people who produce these products, always living deeply with their personal responsibility, making it necessary to adhere to factors of stability, consistency and quality in the hierarchy.

Conclusion:

Instead, we can give many more examples of the extensive work being done in our country to build New Uzbekistan. Solutions that include social reforms are to improve central communication developed with many, exchange data and be a tool for human interests, and operate only by providing information and communication technologies for all country providers. When reforming the new system, it is important to show the importance and effectiveness of high regard for coordination to a wide range of ways.
